Arcona Capital sponsored a car for a non-profit organization supporting school education in Tanzania

In 2020, the vehicle type Toyota Landcruiser was acquired by Arcona Capital funds which the company had provided to the non-profit organization educating orphans and albinos in Tanzania Kibosho. The car, called by its users as “Silver King”, is an essential assistant for day-to-day operations of the organization. It should be noted that the whole operation without the type of vehicle like this would not be possible for volunteers, particularly during the rainy season when the roads get muddy.

Newly acquired car is used by the organization not only for delivering food or feed material for animals, but also for exporting children’s products on markets, as well as for transporting to the hospital, which is 20 km away from the school.

PRESS RELEASE

Kibo Education Trust (KET) – trust which supports social disadvantaged children in Tanzania by providing education in agriculture, construction and other useful fields of activity in this region, is active more than 13 years there. The aim of the organization established by the retired engineer Michael Ngarina, but currently managed by Dutch volunteers, is to ensure resources for needs of school, school fees, teaching aids, but also for food, clothes and shoes or other basic needs of schoolchildren.
